Welcome Letter:

Dear Prospective Midshipmen,

Welcome Aboard!

We're thrilled to have you visit the United States Merchant Marine Academy (USMMA). This visit is a chance to step into the world of Kings Point and experience firsthand what makes this Academy unlike any other institution in the country.

At USMMA, we don't just prepare students for a career, we prepare leaders for a lifetime of service, responsibility, and impact. As one of the nation's five federal service academies, the Merchant Marine Academy blends academic rigor, hands-on maritime training, global experience, and a deep commitment to national service.

While you're on campus, you'll meet with faculty, talk with current midshipmen, and get a sense of the pace and purpose that define life here. This packet will help guide your visit with details on what to bring, what to expect, and tips from those who've stood where you are now.

Kings Point is the only federal academy where you'll spend a full year at sea, gaining real-world experience aboard commercial and military vessels while traveling to ports around the globe. That sea year is one of the most transformative parts of the Kings Point experience, demanding, fast-paced, and deeply rewarding.

By graduation, you'll earn a Bachelor of Science, an unlimited tonnage U.S. Coast Guard license as either a Third Mate or Third Assistant Engineer, and a commission into any of the U.S. Armed Forces. That unique combination opens doors, whether you choose to sail, serve on active duty, or lead in the maritime industry.

We encourage you to ask questions, connect with midshipmen, and imagine yourself as part of this mission. Kings Point is a place for those ready to lead with purpose from day one.

Thank you for your interest in the Academy. We hope your visit inspires you and gives you a clear picture of the challenge, opportunity, and community that await you here.

Acta Non Verba — Deeds, not words. This isn't just our motto; it's a standard we live by.

Midshipman Life Snapshot:

Plebe Year (Fourth Class):

Wake up before dawn for Plebe Muster, and the pace doesn't slowdown from there. You square your corners throughout the day as you navigate demanding STEM classes, regimental obligations, and inspections. You're expected to live by your class rates, maintain your military bearing, and adapt quickly to the high standards of Kings Point. It's challenging, intense, and non-stop – but through it all, you begin to find your footing, your discipline, and your crew.

Third Class Year:

Back on campus with a full academic load, you take on tougher classes like celestial navigation and differential equations, while balancing regimental duties and leadership training. Then, partway through the year, you get your first real taste of life at sea: one trimester aboard ship. You stand watch, learn the ropes, and complete your first sea project – experiencing firsthand what you've been studying.

Second Class Year:

You head back to sea for two full trimesters – this time with greater responsibilities and more challenging sea projects. You put leadership, navigation, and ship operations into action while gaining invaluable hands-on experience. After those two trimesters, you return to campus for your final trimester of academics and regimental leadership duties, preparing to step into a senior role.

First Class Year:

Now you're a senior – a leader of the regiment, mentor to the underclassmen, and prepping for your license exams and future career. The balance is tricky: final classes, regimental duties, service selections, and job interviews all collide. But the finish line is in sight, and every day you carry the weight and pride of being a Kings Pointer. Graduation is more than a ceremony – it's a rite of passage into the maritime profession and beyond.
